TEACHING EXPERIENCE

2016-17 Lecturer McMaster University
Economic Issues (Fall, Winter, Spring)

This course focuses on contemporary social issues and how economic analysis can be employed in thinking about them. Special attention is paid to the assumptions of the models studied to understand why different perspectives exist on some issues. Students are encouraged to think critically by writing their own editorials in support or against a positional statement provided to them. Class size  $\approx$  100.

Microeconomic Theory 2 - Consumer Theory (Summer)
